What messages did you share?

- The vaccine clinic encouraged people to get the vaccine and get a goodie bag with information about the COVID vaccine, in-home COVID test kit, hand sanitizer with labels on it Self-Advocates of Meck. Group sponsored by SABE.
- The video where people with disabilities were interviewed about their experience with getting the COVID vaccine encouraged others to get the vaccine.

How we have used our products to reach out to the disability community

- March 28th, we had as our guest speakers Barbara Angelin-Law and Brandy Foreman with the Mecklenburg County Health Department come to our Self-Advocates of Meck. Meeting and talked to the group and answered questions about COVID and the need for the vaccine. They gave us in-home COVID test kits, masks, and hand sanitizers and other information about the vaccine.
- We had a vaccine clinic at St. Matthew's Methodist Church June 25th and we had a couple of other people from the Self-Advocates of Meck. Group with disabilities there to help us assist in getting the word out about the vaccine clinic. We printed up flyers and sent emails out to the people through InReach and put it on our Facebook page and to others in the community. We gave away supplies that were given to us by the Mecklenburg County Health Department.

Video Project

April 25th at our Self-Advocate meeting our photographer Daniel Coston video taped several people from the group that all have disabilities about their experience with getting the vaccine. We got Jonathan Foxx to edit it and add close captioning to it. He interviewed 10 people but when we had to get it edited half the people's stories were cut out.
